“35 Years Strong” is more than just copy on a page – it is what FPPA has become since 1980. Forged out of Colorado legislation, enhanced by sound benefit structure management practices and prudent investing – today FPPA proudly serves over 25,000 members and manages over $4.5 billion in assets.

Prior to 1978, fire and police pension plans in Colorado were local in nature. Each municipality or fire protection district with paid police officers and/or firefighters administered its own local pension plan for these members. While the benefit structure for these plans was set in state statute, the administration and funding remained with local governments.

Although some financial assistance was provided to these local plans by the Colorado General Assembly, there was no statutory requirement that these local plans be funded on an actuarially sound basis.

As a result by the mid-1970’s many local plans had become significantly underfunded. A 1977 study by the Colorado General Assembly found that in total, these local plans were underfunded in excess of $500 million.

The Police Officers’ and Firefighters’ Pension Reform Commission of the Colorado Legislature moved to enact a series of reform bills with the intent to provide a more actuarially sound pension for police officers and firefighters in Colorado. One of these bills was to authorize the formation of the Fire & Police Pension Association to administer a statewide multiple-employer public employee retirement system providing defined benefit plan coverage as well as death and disability coverage for police officers and firefighters throughout the State of Colorado. FPPA would also administer affiliated local defined benefit pension funds for police officers and firefighters hired prior to April 8, 1978 and for volunteer fire plans.

Our Present… The Proof is in the Percentages.

More than three decades later and the state legislature’s goal to provide a more actuarially sound pension for police officers and firefighters in Colorado has been successful. The ‘funding ratio’ of the key pension plans serving these members is sound.

The funding ratio of a pension plan measures the stability of a plan. A funding ratio is calculated by dividing net assets of a plan by accrued liabilities. The outcome is a percentage of the accrued liabilities that are covered by the assets. The higher the funding ratio, the more solid the plan.

Based on the results of recent annual actuarial valuations of FPPA Plans, the Board of Directors approved the following SRA, Contribution Rates and Benefit Adjustments.

Glossary of Plan Annual Rates

A Separate Retirement Account (SRA) is a feature of a defined benefit plan only. It is an allocation that may be made yearly depending on if contributions payable to a particular plan exceed the cost of funding that plan. Any excess of funding may be allocated from the employer contributions to an SRA in each member’s name.

Contribution Rates to a plan are shared by members and their employers. How the total rate is determined or split between member and employer is decided by each plan’s governing documents.

Benefit Adjustments are percentage increases to existing retirement benefits and are determined by the FPPA Board of Directors. Within the Statewide Plans, those who retired on or before October 1, 2014 will have their benefit adjusted in their October retirement payment.

For more information about any of these plans or annual rates please refer to FPPA’s website.

Approximately every five years, FPPA does an actuarial experience study. In this study, we look at the various economic and demographic assumptions that we use in administering our defined benefit plans in order to determine if any of them need to be changed. I should note that we also look at the assumptions every single year, noting whether there have been actuarial gains or losses where actual experience differs from an assumption. In doing an actuarial experience study, we look backwards and see if there have been any consistent variations from prior assumptions over the last several years. We also do our best to look forward on assumptions, seeking to align them with our best thoughts on what the future holds.

One example is the mortality expectations for our retirees. Due to advances in health care, current and especially future retirees are expected to live longer. Increased longevity is wonderful, but it also means a plan will pay benefits for a longer period of time. In order to plan for this, FPPA has assumed not only that future retirees will live longer, but that there will continue to be increases in longevity going forward. FPPA is at the forefront of retirement plans across the country in this area.

Changes to our actuarial assumptions also affect the funded status of the plans. For example, in the Statewide Defined Benefit Plan, the actuarial assumption changes made would have moved the funded status downward by 1.9% with respect to the plan as of the end of 2014. However, the changed assumptions are not retroactive, and will be used for determining the funded status of the various defined benefit plans at the end of 2015 and forward.

As far as funded status, the statewide FPPA plans remain in excellent shape. The funded status of those plans as of the end of 2014 are listed in the chart in the middle of the next page.

A couple other significant initiatives took place in 2015 with respect to our self-directed plans. First, plan loans are now available in the 457 Deferred Compensation plan. In addition, in an attempt to maintain best practices in plan administration and to increase transparency of costs of the self-directed plans, FPPA moved all investment options to the lowest cost share class available to the plans.

FPPA is an active participant in the Healthcare Enhancement for Local Public Safety (HELPs) provision under the Pension Protection Act (PPA). HELPS allows eligible retired public safety officers to exclude from their federal income taxes an amount paid directly from a retirement plan distribution to cover the cost of qualified health and long-term care insurance premiums. These payments may be made on behalf of the member, his or her spouse, or dependents. The member must have retired at a normal retirement age or are receiving a disability retirement. Additionally, the member’s benefit must be fully or partially taxable.

FPPA offers several insurance programs for retirees, including healthcare and prescription drug plans for members who are Medicare Eligible, dental plans and vision plans. Premiums are deducted from the retiree’s monthly pension check, thereby allowing eligible retirees to take advantage of the Federal Income Tax exclusion discussed above. In general, premiums are prepaid one month in advance of the coverage month.

Consider if a recent change in family status may trigger a change in your health insurance coverage with FPPA. Dependents having reached age 26 or having married are no longer eligible to participate under your insurance plan. Contact an FPPA Payroll Specialist or your former employer’s HR department today to learn if your insurance premium withholdings may need to be adjusted accordingly.
Colorado State Legislation, Plan Rules & Regulations and Plan Documents are the three key governing documents for FPPA.

Certain FPPA administered plans have a provision for plan changes or enhancements to be made through the passage of state legislation. Such legislative efforts are first drafted by staff then presented to the State Legislative Council Committee called the Police Officers’ and Firefighters’ Pension Reform Commission (PRC). Bills with favorable approval from the PRC are then introduced to the Colorado General Assembly for a vote. The Assembly is generally in session from January to May of each year. The progress of bills drafted by FPPA and sponsored by the PRC may be followed at this web address www.colorado.gov/lcs/. (Once on that web page you will find the PRC listed under “Committees” as an “Interim Committee”.)

Rules & Regulations and Plan Documents provide even more detail for the administration of FPPA plans. Proposed amendments to both Rules & Regulations and the Plan Documents are considered each year during the August FPPA Board Meeting followed by discussion and adoption during the September meeting. Announcements for both meetings as well as the proposed & adopted amendments are posted on our website at FPPAco.org (Click on the Rules & Statutes blue button on the left of the page)

Because each plan administered by FPPA is separately funded there is no single funding ratio for all plans. Assets cannot be co-mingled to pay the benefit obligations of another plan. The funding status of each individual plan should be considered separately.

Below are the funding ratios by the end of 2014.

Stop paper statements coming to your door. Sign up for access to your account on the FPPA Member Account Portal and select the option for getting your benefit information electronically. The Member Account Portal is quick, easy and available 24/7.

If you are contacted about your retirement benefit by anyone other than FPPA - be cautious! You have a legal right to ask for the callers name, company and a phone number. If they are unable to provide that information - hang up. It is most likely a scam.

Visit the Federal Trade Commission website (consumer.ftc.gov). Once there you will find the most current information about securing all of your information and protecting your privacy.
Have you recently married, divorced, started a family or finally got that last kid out of the nest? Or have you experienced the passing of a loved one? Consider if any of these life events might mean the beneficiary you’ve designated with FPPA is no longer current.

“Beneficiary-designation forms are easy to complete, even easier to forget, but so important in keeping your financial assets in order,” says William L. Anthes, former president and CEO of Colorado-based National Endowment for Financial Education®. A good rule is to review your beneficiary information at least every two years to ensure that all circumstances are accounted for properly. In addition to reviewing your beneficiary information associated with financial institutions and insurance companies - remember to update your information with FPPA as well.

For active members of the Statewide Defined Benefit Plan or the Statewide Hybrid Plan - Defined Benefit Component.

You can review who you have currently listed as your primary beneficiary by logging in to the Member Account Portal on FPPA’s website. Once there if you need to update your beneficiary information, complete a new Membership Form. You can get this form by calling FPPA at the phone numbers listed at the top of this page or on our website at FPPAco.org and click on the Beneficiary link under “Recent News”.
